C3 Gary Farrelly

For Gary (1983 - 2007), ideological and aesthetic compromise is the most difficult aspect of « Real life ». As a consequence, he furnishes a « compensating » art that is a precise physical manifestation of his egocentric world view. In and through his practice he develops strategies to implement his will. Habitually working with the flotsam and jetsam of an ultra consumerist society, Farrelly modifies history, revises geographical boundaries and populates the world with the images, concepts and issues that stimulate him most.

By means of devotional commitment to his work Farrelly expects to eventually construct and inhabit that sought after state of Utopia.
